

README file for replication package of “International Spillover Effects of US Monetary Policy Uncertainty” by Lakdawala, Moreland and Schaffer

The code in this replication package is written in Stata and Matlab and generates the 3 figures and 11 tables in the main text, as well as the 8 figures and 19 tables in the online appendix.

Data Availability and Provenance Statements

All data can be made publicly available, with the exception of the CME data on Eurodollar option and futures prices and Bloomberg data on asset prices (bond yields, equity indexes and exchange rates). For the CME and Bloomberg data, only derived data are included in the replication package, including short-rate uncertainty, short-rate surprises, and two-day changes in asset prices around FOMC announcements.

“Bloomberg data terminal documentation.docx”, “Bloomberg_download_template.xlsx”, and “data_raw_template.xlsx” provide instructions for compiling our raw asset price data.

Computational requirements

Software Requirements

- Matlab (version 9.10.0.1684407 (R2021a) Update 3)
- Stata (version 16)
 - The following packages must be installed:
 - `ssc install reghdfe`

Description of code and instructions for replication

The Stata and MATLAB files containing all the code necessary for producing the tables and figures in the table are in the root folder of the replication package.

Stata code:

- The code and data used for producing each table and figure (other than figure 1) is listed in the below table.
 - Set the working directory to the replication folder's location on your drive to run the .do files

MATLAB code:

- The code and data used for producing figure 1 is listed in the below table.
